

Cathal drives off in new Renault Grand Mégane

21st October 2011

Cathal O' Connell (33) from Ballycullane, Wexford, and now living in Cork, drove off in his brand new Renault Grand Mégane after a nail biting live radio final on the Breakfast Show on Today FM this morning (21st October).

The competition in association with the Ian Dempsey Breakfast Show which Renault Ireland sponsor, has been running for the past two weeks and the seven lucky finalists including Cathal were invited to the newly launched Renault dealership, Blackstone Motors in Drogheda, to be in with a chance to win their choice of three Renault Mégane models – the coupé , hatch or Grand Mégane.

Cathal couldn't contain his joy when he found out that his key clicked open the door of the prize car. An electrician by trade, Cathal has recently been made redundant and is now living and studying with FAS in Cork.

"I've been listening to Ian Dempsey on the Today FM Breakfast Show for years and I've never won a competition before, so this is just unbelievable".

Cathal and his girlfriend Diane are delighted with his new Mégane as his current motor is a 2002 car!

Happy Motoring Cathal...
